As the Adept finished this sentence, a sound as if produced by the tinkling of small silver bells was heard in the air above our heads. I looked up, but nothing was to be seen from which that sound could have proceeded. This is the signal, said the Adept, that the members of our order are assembled in the Refectory. Let us go to join their company. Some refreshment will undoubtedly be welcome to you. III. THE REFECTIONY. TTTE stepped out into the corridor and entered the garden. The palm-trees and exotic plants, by which we were surrounded, formed a strong contrast to the weird and desolate scener} , with its fields of ice and scrub-pines, which I had seen before entering this enchanted valley. High bushes of Fuchsias changed with Rose-bushes, and all were covered with the most beautiful flowers; the air was perfumed from the odor of many varieties of Hyacinths, Heliotropes, and other plants whose names I do not remember. Nevertheless the place was not a hot-house, for there was no other roof over it than the clear blue sky. I wondered whether perhaps the garden was heated from below the surface, and the thought came into my mind that so much luxary seemed not to agree with the views, expressed by the Adept, that those who live within the paradise of their own souls do not care for external sensual gratification. But the Lnoperator seemed to know my thought...
