Not illustrated. 1899 Excerpt: .all creatures, is in infancy the most helpless of all animals. He possesses neither reason nor instinct in any marked degree, and his brain-power appears to be, practically, of no moment. Since it is the intelligence of the mind that moulds the features of the face, it is not to be wondered at that the featureless features of babies should all be so similar. Their faces are presented to them as a clean new page on which they are to write the story of their lives. Happiness and sorrow, grief and gladness, vice and virtue--all the thoughts and purposes and impulses of being tend to form and individualize the face. Smile and frown, each leaves its lasting impress about lip and eye and brow. For, after all, pretty is as pretty does, and, it is good to know that each of us is permitted to have such a large part to do in the making of our own features. RAG-TIME FAMILIARLY CONSIDERED. BY HELENA M. MAGUIRK. AG-TIME has been so much used and abused as to have become a matter of history. Variously understood, it is the grinning ape of that most orderly and methodical of things, --time; it is an exaggeration and misplacement of accent ; a wilful upsetter of rhythm; it is the Touchstone of this latter-day music-drama, and wins the most applause. It stands for all that is clever, piquant, merry to the ear, and all the world crowds to roof-garden, pop-concert and...
